The emergency department at Brigham and Women’s Hospital has recently completed a physical expansion and is seeking specialized academic emergency medicine physicians to support clinical care, education and department research activities in Emergency Ultrasound, Medical Toxicology, and Health Policy and Public Health.

The positions will supply clinical shifts in the Emergency Departments at Brigham and Women’s Hospital (BWH) and Brigham and Women’s Faulkner Hospital (BWFH). BWH is a 760-bed academic hospital and a pillar teaching affiliate of Harvard Medical School. It is a level 1 trauma and burn referral center and offers the full spectrum of medical and surgical specialties. BWFH is a 170-bed community teaching hospital in Jamaica Plain, Massachusetts. It offers comprehensive medical, surgical, and psychiatric care, as well as emergency, ambulatory, and diagnostic services. The BWFH Department of Emergency Medicine cares for over 30,000 patients per year in a 19 bed ED. The position may also provide clinical support at BWH’s Urgent Care Center in Foxborough, MA (Patriot Place).

Successful candidates must have successfully completed a four year residency training program in Emergency Medicine, or a three year program followed by a fellowship or one year in practice, and must be board-eligible or certified in Emergency Medicine. A strong background in Emergency Ultrasound, Medical Toxicology, and Health Policy and Public Health, and grant funding in any of these subspecialties is highly considered.

The appropriate candidates will be eligible for academic appointment at Harvard Medical School at the rank of Instructor or Assistant Professor or Associate Professor commensurate with experience, achievement, recognition, and participation in teaching and scholarly activities. The position offers unparalleled opportunities for professional development, a competitive salary, and an outstanding comprehensive benefit package. Brigham and Women’s Hospital is intensely committed to the personal and professional development of our providers.

Interested candidates should send a letter and Curriculum Vitae to Michael VanRooyen, MD, MPH, Professor and Chair, Department of Emergency Medicine, Brigham and Women’s Hospital. Please apply by confidential email to mdeloge@bwh.harvard.edu.
