Director, Center for Genomic Medicine

Massachusetts General Hospital, located in Boston, Massachusetts, is seeking an academic and scientific leader to fill the position of Director for the Center for Genomic Medicine (CGM).

We are seeking a recognized leader with a national/international track record of scientific accomplishment in the field of human genetics and/or genomics research. It is imperative that the candidate have experience in leading a department or research center within a complex academic environment. The candidate should have a clear vision for fostering excellence in patient care, research and teaching. It will also be essential that candidates have excellent organizational, interpersonal, fiscal and fundraising skills.

The candidate should have an MD or PhD degree. Also, the candidate should be qualified to be appointed at the professor or associate professor level at Harvard Medical School.

Interested applicants should submit curriculum vitae to the email address below for consideration:

Merit E. Cudkowicz, MD
Chief, Department of Neurology
55 Fruit Street, Wang 720
Boston MA 02114
mghcgmssearch@mgh.harvard.edu

We are an equal opportunity employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, gender identity, sexual orientation, pregnancy and pregnancy-related conditions or any other characteristic protected by law.