Chief of the Division of Gastroenterology, Hepatology, and Endoscopy at Brigham and Women’s Hospital

Brigham and Women’s Hospital is seeking a distinguished physician-investigator to serve as Chief and Senior Physician in the Division of Gastroenterology, Hepatology, and Endoscopy within the Department of Medicine and with a proposed academic appointment as Professor or Associate Professor of Medicine at Harvard Medical School commensurate with qualifications.

Applicants should be board-certified gastroenterologists who are clinical experts in both internal medicine and the subspecialty of gastroenterology, have proven records of research accomplishments, and maintain thoughtful approaches to educational activities and engagement in the wider community. This individual will have far reaching leadership responsibilities; therefore, he or she must have exemplary administrative, mentoring, and communication acumen not only to lead a large and complex division, but also to engage with institutional, departmental, and divisional leaders, the pan-Harvard community as well as the regional, national, and international communities in the fields of gastroenterology, hepatology, and endoscopy.

Prospective applicants should send a letter of interest and a current curriculum vitae addressed to Ursula Kaiser, M.D., Chairperson, Ad Hoc Search Committee, Brigham and Women’s Hospital, Inc., Department of Medicine, and email those to John Spiers at jspierson1@bwh.harvard.edu

We are an equal opportunity employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, pregnancy and pregnancy-related conditions, or any other characteristic protected by law. Women and minority candidates are particularly encouraged to apply.