The department of Medical Oncology at the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute and the Department of Medicine, Brigham and Women’s Hospital, announce a search for a physician at the Instructor or Assistant Professor level to join the Chronic Lymphocytic Leukemia (CLL) Program. The successful candidate will participate in a very active clinical practice that is fully integrated within a large and growing clinical and translational research program. Interest and expertise in CLL, including detailed understanding of prognostic factor evaluation and experience with targeted therapies is required, as is experience and interest in the conduct of clinical trials. Applicants should have demonstrated early success with a track record of publication and/or receipt of peer-reviewed funding. The candidate will engage in robust clinical service, clinical investigation and teaching of medical students, housestaff, and hematology/oncology fellows in the outpatient clinic and inpatient settings. Academic rank of Instructor or Assistant Professor at Harvard Medical School will be commensurate with experience, training, and academic achievements.

Applicants should have an M.D. or M.D./Ph.D., with ABIM certification and should have or be eligible for ABIM subspecialty certification in medical oncology and/or hematology.

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, CV, and the names and email addresses of three references to: Dr. Jennifer Brown, Chair-Search Committee, Division of Hematologic Malignancies, Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, 450 Brookline Avenue, Boston MA 02215, attn: Katie Kupferberg, KKupferberg@partners.org

We are an equal opportunity employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, pregnancy and pregnancy-related conditions or any other characteristic protected by law. Women and minority candidates are particularly encouraged to apply.