The Department of Emergency Medicine at Brigham and Women's HealthCare (BWHC) is seeking emergency medicine physicians interested in clinical research.

Brigham and Women's Hospital is a major teaching affiliate of Harvard Medical School, a level 1 trauma and burn center. The Department of Emergency Medicine faculty cares for 70,000 adult patients per year in a 46 bed ED which includes a 10 bed ED Observation Unit.

The Department of Emergency Medicine provides unparalleled opportunities for collaboration with faculty and researchers throughout Brigham Health and Harvard. The appropriate candidate will be eligible for academic appointment at Harvard Medical School at the rank of Instructor or Assistant Professor or Associate Professor commensurate with experience, achievement, recognition, and participation in teaching and scholarly activities. The position offers unparalleled opportunities for professional development, a competitive salary, and an outstanding comprehensive benefit package. BWHC is intensely committed to the personal and professional development of our providers.

Successful candidates must have successfully completed a four year residency training program in Emergency Medicine, or a three year program followed by a fellowship or one year in practice, and must be board prepared or certified in Emergency Medicine.

Interested candidates should send a letter and Curriculum Vitae to Michael VanRooyen, MD, MPH, Professor and Chair, Department of Emergency Medicine, Brigham and Women's Hospital. Please apply by confidential email to mdeloge@bwh.harvard.edu.

We are an equal opportunity employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, gender identity, sexual orientation, pregnancy and pregnancy-related conditions or any other characteristic protected by law.