

MASSACHUSETTS GENERAL HOSPITAL

The Division of Gastroenterology at Massachusetts General Hospital welcomes applications from qualified individuals for a full-time clinical position in our Interventional Endoscopy program. The MGH GI Division is at the forefront of clinical care, fellowship training, and investigation in gastroenterology and hepatology. Successful candidates will possess strong consultative and endoscopic skills in both the outpatient and inpatient settings and the ability to work collaboratively. Applicants must be committed to teaching as a requirement for this position, and experience and interest in the supervision and education of trainees is desirable. Experience and interest in clinical or translational research are advantageous. Candidates must possess proficiency in ERCP and EUS and must be board certified in gastroenterology. Initial appointment can be at the Instructor, Assistant, or Associate Professor level at Harvard Medical School commensurate with qualifications, and in the Gastroenterology Division, MGH. AA/EOE. Inquiries by women and underrepresented minority applicants are encouraged.

Please submit CV or inquiries to the Interventional Endoscopy Search Committee
Massachusetts General Hospital
Division of Gastroenterology
55 Fruit Street, Wang 5
Boston, MA 02114
or via email to jmacdiamid@partners.org

We are an equal opportunity employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, gender identity, sexual orientation, pregnancy and pregnancy-related conditions or any other characteristic protected by law.