Academic Palliative Medicine Physician

The Dana-Farber Cancer Institute (DFCI) Department of Psychosocial Oncology and Palliative Care and Brigham & Women's Hospital (BWH) Division of Palliative Medicine seek an Adult Palliative Medicine physician to join our interprofessional team. This position offers an exciting career opportunity within a vibrant clinical and academic environment, where faculty can focus on clinical innovation, education, or research. The successful candidate will have a faculty appointment at the Instructor or Assistant Professor level at Harvard Medical School (HMS) and clinical privileges at both DFCI and BWH. Salary, benefits and compensation will be commensurate with experience and hospital policies. Candidates must be board certified/eligible in Hospice and Palliative Medicine. Palliative Medicine Fellowship training is preferred.

We seek a full-time Adult Palliative Care physician for our inpatient practice. Our physicians attend on our palliative care consult service and palliative care unit at BWH. They work closely with our interprofessional teams of nurses, physician assistants, social workers, pharmacists, and psychosocial oncology colleagues to provide state-of-the-art palliative care to seriously ill patients.

Faculty also have the opportunity to participate in extensive formal and informal teaching activities at BWH, DFCI, and the HMS Center for Palliative Care. Trainees include fellows in palliative care, pain/anesthesia, psychiatry, geriatrics, and gynecologic and surgical oncology; residents; physician assistants; medical students; and other clinicians rotating on the Palliative Care Service.

The Department of Psychosocial Oncology and Palliative Care houses broad innovation and research efforts. We seek candidates who wish to pursue academic interests in relevant palliative care areas such as communication education, symptom management, substance abuse disorder, or equitable access and quality of palliative care to underserved populations. The department is deeply committed to high-quality mentorship and sponsorship of new faculty in a number of academic pursuits and provides numerous opportunities for mentorship of learners at all levels. A broad pool of academic opportunities and mentorship are also available throughout the DFCI, BWH and the HMS communities. The Boston and Harvard community offers unparalleled opportunities for cross-disciplinary collaboration and mentorship with world-class academicians.

We are an equal opportunity employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. The Department is keenly interested in diversifying its faculty and encourages applications from diverse candidates, including from women and minorities. We are committed to supporting the work-life balance of our faculty.

If interested, please send a cover letter detailing your clinical, educational, and academic interests along with your CV to: James Tulsy, MD, Chair, Department of Psychosocial Oncology and Palliative Care, DFCI, 450 Brookline Ave, D2016A, Boston, MA 02215
