The Massachusetts General Hospital (MGH) Cardiology Division and the Fireman Vascular Center are seeking fellowship trained (non-invasive) vascular medicine physicians to join the Division’s expanding cardiovascular services. An Academic Appointment at Harvard Medical School may be at the Instructor or Assistant Professor rank and will be commensurate with experience, training and achievements. The candidate will be expected to contribute to the clinical, educational, research, and administrative functions of the Cardiology Division. Salary and benefits will commensurate with the candidate’s experience and qualifications.

The candidate will be active in both outpatient and inpatient evaluation and management activities of patients with the full breadth of vascular disease. The candidate is expected to manage an outpatient vascular medicine clinic in several locations. Also, the candidate is expected to serve in a consulting role as part of the vascular medicine section.

The ideal candidate will be board-certified in internal medicine and / or cardiology and be fellowship-trained in vascular medicine. The selected candidate will be expected to contribute to the research and educational mission of the Division and participate in regular educational offerings, including, but not limited to cardiology as well as vascular medicine and intervention fellows.

We invite highly qualified fellowship-trained vascular medicine candidates who are committed to excellence in patient care and possess strong clinical and interpersonal skills to apply. The review process is ongoing.

We are an equal opportunity employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, gender identity, sexual orientation, pregnancy and pregnancy-related conditions or any other characteristic protected by law.

Interested candidates should send a personal statement with research interest, three potential referees and Curriculum Vitae to: MGHCardiologySearch@partners.org - please add in subject line: Vascular Medicine Physician