Massachusetts General Hospital
Massachusetts General Hospital for Children

Pediatric Urology

The Department of Urology at Massachusetts General Hospital and Mass General Hospital for Children are seeking an outstanding candidate to join our growing Pediatric Urology program. This position will include both an MGH and Harvard Medical School appointment. Responsibilities include providing outpatient and inpatient care at MGH and Mass General Brigham (MGB) institutions in the community. MGH faculty are expected to engage in supervision and teaching of medical students and residents. Additionally, they should participate in departmental functions and clinical and/or basic research. The Division works closely with the MGH/C Division of Pediatric Surgery.

The successful candidate will have strong clinical skills in Pediatric Urology and a national reputation for excellence in the field. Requirements include an MD degree, eligibility for medical licensure in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Board certification in Urology, and subspecialty certification or board eligibility in Pediatric Urology.

Academic appointment at the rank of Assistant or Associate professor at Harvard Medical School will be commensurate with experience, qualifications and achievements.

Applicants should send a letter of interest and their curricular vitae to:
