Boston Children's Hospital
General Pediatrics
Urgent Care Positions Available

The Division of General Pediatrics at Boston Children's Hospital seeks BC/BE general pediatricians to join our growing primary care program in the Division of General Pediatrics. Our practice provides opportunities for teaching, clinical research and mentorship. We are seeking pediatricians with interest in urgent care, particularly providing urgent care in the medical home. In our practices this care ranges from acute illness management in healthy children to management of complications of complex illness. Fellowship training and/or prior experience is preferred.

Boston Children's Primary Care is a patient-centered medical home for many children living in poverty or with complex health needs and serves as a continuity site for the Boston Combined Residency in Pediatrics. The practice cares for patients at three sites: Boston Children's Primary Care Center on the Longwood campus, Martha Eliot Health Center in Jamaica Plain, and a new site opening in Weymouth, MA in April 2024. Our practice values innovation and has a vigorous quality improvement program. There is emphasis on improving systems that support value-based care.

Salary and benefits are competitive.

Boston Children's Hospital is a teaching hospital of Harvard Medical School and the pediatric staff will obtain an academic appointment at the level of Instructor or Assistant Professor.

Applicants should submit curriculum vitae to:

Joanne E. Cox, MD
Associate Professor of Pediatrics
Harvard Medical School
Associate Chief for Outpatient Medicine
Division of General Pediatrics
Boston Children's Hospital
617 355 5227
Joanne.cox@childrens.harvard.edu

HARVARD MEDICAL SCHOOL TEACHING HOSPITAL